 - A jurat (verification upon oath) requires the signer to be compelled to truthfulness regarding the content of the document. The signer is required to take an oath/affirmation before the notary in order for the receiving agency to trust the signer’s statements within the document. Jurats are often performed on affidavits and depositions.
 - For both acknowledgements and jurats, the following must be true:
 - Signer personally appears
 - Signer is positively identified
 - For a jurat, the signer must swear to the content of the document.
 - Acknowledgements are more widely used, particularly within the context of a loan signing. Its main purpose is to positively identify the signer and verify that the signer signed freely.
